Local Community Groups urged to apply for funding

Community groups in the Hunter and Upper Hunter Valley regions with initiatives that make a positive difference to the local community are being encouraged to apply for funding in the next round of Mount Thorley Warkworth and Ashton Coal's Community Support Programs.

The programs are funded by Yancoal Australia and provide financial assistance to local groups working in the areas of health, social and community, environment, education, and training.

Mount Thorley Warkworth General Manager, David Bennett, is encouraging locals to raise their hand for assistance by applying for funding.

"Our Community Support program gives us the opportunity to assist those locally-focused programs and initiatives capable of making a real contribution to the continued growth and sustainability of the region.

"A previously successful organisation is Singleton Rugby Club. With funding support from us, they were able to purchase new first aid kits, a vital part of keeping their players, spectators, and officials safe at gametime.

"This is just one small example of the fantastic work that has been supported by the program and it's great to see the positive impact it makes to our community," said David.

In the past, Yancoal Australia funding has enabled: the development and implementation of environmental projects, education, training, and employment assistance initiatives; sponsorship of key community events; the purchase of much needed equipment; and helped support disadvantaged groups within the community.

Ashton Coal Operations Manager, Aaron McGuigan is calling for community groups in the Upper Hunter Valley region to apply for financial assistance.

"As a large employer in the area, we believe in the value of supporting grass roots groups and organisations to grow and expand, thereby strengthening our community.

"Previously we have funded upgrades and expansions at local Pre-Schools and Schools, theatre productions, new equipment for sporting clubs and even new outdoor fitness stations at a school.

"We are a proud and active member of the community and want to support projects, events and initiatives that help make a genuine positive difference to the Upper Hunter Valley region. We encourage all the local community groups to apply now," said Aaron.

Yancoal is proud to be investing into local and regional Australia, helping build stronger communities across the country.
